PADEP allows Cabot to frack some Dimock wells

The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection gave Cabot Oil and Gas the green light to hydraulically fracture seven previously-drilled wells in Dimock, Pennsylvania, roughly two years after the company's area operations were suspended due to methane migration.

DEP spokesman Kevin Sunday told Gas Business Briefing the company can't drill new wells in the nine-square-mile area until the source of methane migration has been eliminated or cut to background levels.
